"No! I said I could hit ye, when senseless."

Rose Satin Evening Cape

Many yards of firm, thick satin were used in the development of this evening cape, which is built in two sections. The outer side of palest rose shade has rather scant straight fronts, which apparently button from the neck to the hem on to the voluminous back, which falls in wide folds away from the shoulders.

The lining, of deepest rose-hued satin, matches the hand embroidery of the wide flat collar, which also is soutache braided.

The white silk frock has a rose chiffon tunic, embroidered with white chenille, and the rose chip hat is edged with deepest rose velvet and wreathed with white roses.

That Postal Deficit

The Joint Postal Commission in 1907 reported as follows:

"It appears too obvious to require argument that the most efficient service can never be expected as long as the direction of the business is, as at present, intrusted to a Postmaster-General and certain assistants selected without special reference to experience and qualifications and subject to frequent change. Before the Postmaster-General and his assistants can become reasonably familiar with the operations of the service they are replaced by others, who, in turn, are called upon to resign before they can, in the nature of things, become qualified by knowledge and experience to perform their allotted tasks. Under such a system a large railroad, commercial or industrial business would inevitably go into bankruptcy, and the Post-Office Department has avowed that fate only because the United States Treasury has been available to meet deficiencies."

The public accountants' report said:

"The work of the Department and its development is hindered all along the line by slavish adherence to old methods and to precedents created in previous years, and many reforms which might otherwise be instituted are hindered—if not entirely prevented—by appeals to the decisions of the Comptroller, made, perhaps, many years ago under entirely different conditions. Then, again, the conservatism of Government officials is a generally admitted fact. There is no inducement to employees to suggest improvements in the service for the reason that if these improvements result in greater efficiency or economy of administration they will receive little credit; and, on the other hand, if new methods are not successful they will be charged with the whole blame."

In view of these official statements by those whom Congress authorized to investigate the Post-Office, we submit that the Postmaster-General's attempt to wipe out the deficit in his Department by raising the postage on your magazines, instead of by devoting his energies to securing legislation that will place the service on a sound, efficient and economical basis, is unwise and unbusinesslike. The nature of his recommendations, and the attempt to exempt newspapers from any increase, are final grounds for a divorce of this great business department from politics.

DEATH ENDS DIVORCE SUIT; WIFE MAY GET PROPERTY

San Antonio, Tex., Feb. 25.—In the death of P. A. Wagner a divorce suit in which he was the plaintiff terminates. The suit was pending in the 45th district court. Wagner had sued his wife, Mary Wagner, on the grounds of abandonment, alleging that she had left him and gone to California. Two attempts have been made to get service on Mrs. Wagner, but both have failed. In the eyes of the law she is not yet cognizant that her husband contemplated divorcing her.

The law says she has the right to return to San Antonio and institute claim for whatever her husband has left, and as Wagner was possessed of a considerable amount of property it is expected that she will return to the city and claim the estate.

BIG CROWDS TO SEE HAMILTON AT DOUGLAS

Marion J. McKillop, of Bisbee, Arizona, formerly stenographer for the Federal court of the western district of Texas, is at the Sheldon and will remain a couple of days on important mining business.

He says that nearly every one in Bisbee will go to Douglas to witness the flight of Hamilton and that it is believed that more than five thousand people will buy tickets for the aviation meet, after reading about the success of the El Paso aviation meet.

NOTICE—BANKS TO DISCONTINUE OVERDRAFTS RESOLUTION.

On account of recent rulings from controller of currency of the United States and the superintendent of banking of state of Texas making any loss to banks on account of overdrafts a direct liability of the officers, the undersigned banks, members of El Paso Clearing House, have decided to discontinue the practice, and respectfully advise their clients, that after March 13, 1910, no overdrafts will be permitted.

BIG SHIPMENTS OF DYNAMITE TO EL PASO

Mount Franklin Could Be Blown Into the Gulf Each Week.

Enough dynamite to blow Mt. Franklin into the Gulf of Mexico passes through El Paso each week—almost enough, anyway. At least 50,000 pounds of dynamite are shipped monthly to or through this port, and one firm makes weekly shipments of about 37,500 pounds of black powder.

"Powder is an industrial thermometer," says F. P. Thomas, representative of the Denver exchange of the E. I. Du Pont Powder company.

"When powder comes it means prosperity," he said in the lobby of the Sheldon this morning. "At present there is little going on in El Paso in mining operations yet there must be nearly 50,000 pounds of dynamite shipped here each month, besides the black powder we send into Mexico. Even in the big cities of the east powder is an indication of industrial advance. Subways and civic improvements of many sorts need powder, and stone, since stone is being used for building instead of brick that uses still more."

"No, there is little danger in shipping powder nowadays. If for instance you figure how much goes through El Paso in box cars and how few accidents you have that will be seen. A special commission, the railroads and the powder companies have allied in fighting the danger, especially in the last two years."

Of course Mr. Thomas does not handle any dynamite himself. He merely handles paper representing dynamite.
